

PALO was born from an encounter between knowledge and sensitivity. From Mallorca, we inherited technique, the discipline of craftsmanship, and restraint; from the Caribbean, warmth, rhythm, and a direct relationship with the environment. In that intersection, we found our reason for being a singular way of creating that defines us.

Each piece of furniture is the result of this dialogue. No two pieces are alike because no process is ever repeated. We work with respect for the wood, for time, and for the hands that shape every piece. We believe in the value of detail and in a quiet beauty that does not seek to impose itself, but to endure.

Furniture is born from a dialogue between place, use, and material. Each piece is developed in response to the scale of the space, its rhythm, and the way it is meant to be inhabited. From small commissions to complete interior schemes for large hotels, artisanal craftsmanship and attention to detail come together to shape solutions designed to last.

HISTORY

Founded in 1992 by interior designer Pepe Deudero, PALO emerges from a legacy that dates back to the 1960s, when he began learning the craft of carpentry alongside his uncle, master craftsman Antonio Roca, in Mallorca. This knowledge, passed down from generation to generation, is still present today in every joint, texture, and grain that shapes the workshop's pieces.

Deudero, alongside Linnette Nardi and a network of collaborators, introduces new perspectives without compromising its artisanal essence. Together, they lead a team of master cabinetmakers who preserve the tradition with precision and rigor, keeping the art of woodworking alive.

The traditional carpentry workshop is located in Bávaro, DO, where time and process define its practice. Surrounded by tools, materials, and accumulated knowledge, the workshop is conceived as a space where each commission becomes an opportunity to honor the craft.

Working with solid woods from the American continent, selected according to sustainability criteria, PALO balances tradition and contemporaneity, creating unique pieces in constant evolution.
